the . . .

1965 Scalpel
Dedication

Loren H. Evans, D.V.M.

It is indeed appropriate that the honor of yearbook dedication be received by someone who has demonstrated a personal interest in the students and an unselfish willingness to educate.

This busy clinician's sincere desire to teach became apparent, even in the early stages of our professional education. His first lecture as a graduate Veterinarian was our initial exposure as freshman to clinical medicine.

During our three pre-clinical years, many basic questions relating to Equine Husbandry, Medicine, and Surgery received his prompt attention and were answered concisely, tactfully, and with never-ending patience. His value as an educator and the treasure of his friendship were not fully appreciated until each senior had the opportunity to work with him in the Equine clinic. The surgical skills and diagnostic abilities he has developed in his four-year tenure at the University have been a motivating resource in the development of our professional careers.

With feelings of sincere pride and gratitude, the class of 1965 respectfully dedicates our yearbook to the "Man from Montana".
In this Bicentennial year of the beginnings of medical education in the United States, the contributions which every area of medicine supplies to our well-being and to helping assure that life may be a pleasant experience for all of the planet's inhabitants should be remembered. Veterinary Medicine has become an interdisciplinary practice. Domestic creatures are healthier because of its findings; it has assisted in controlling the spread of disease among animals, which often affects people's health, and its doing so has led to many benefits, including new medicines and better food for man. Importantly, too, its practitioners have demonstrated through research and experimentation the origins of particular diseases and the functioning of physiological mechanisms that have had far-reaching and significant applications to the human being and to the knowledge and control of those illnesses and malfunctions to which he is subject.

The years ahead promise extraordinary developments in the health sciences, and Veterinarians will share importantly in the discoveries and advances which scientific endeavors promise. Francis Bacon reminded us, "I hold every man a debtor to his profession; from which as men of course do seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and ornament thereto."

His advice is appropriate today, and as you enter the challenging profession which you have chosen as your life's practice, you have the University's sincere congratulations and best wishes for the consequential years ahead for medicine, and indeed for all of us.
You have received your professional education in a distinguished Medical Center and are graduating in a year when American Medicine's attention is focused on the University of Pennsylvania—the Bicentennial of the School of Medicine, a year long celebration, will bring great prestige to our Campus. Veterinary Medicine shares in this celebration through Faculty participation in bicentennial conferences, and by the practice of unity of medicine on our Campus. I mention this in my message for it is meaningful to you as new members of our profession and as graduates of a great school.

As you move into your adopted community, may you do so with your sights set high and with the determination to serve your community well, to the credit of your profession and Alma Mater.

Mark W. Allam U.M.D.
My heartiest congratulations to each of you for achieving your goal of becoming a Veterinarian. It is a great pleasure to welcome you as colleagues in our great profession and to wish each of you success and happiness.

During the past four years you have witnessed the most extensive expansion and dynamic growth of our school in all its eighty-one years of existence. This has been gratifying to us all even though we have had to endure together the many inconveniences and annoyances inherent in any expansion program. I am thankful that you have had the opportunity of enjoying our new facilities during your final year.

As you leave us to begin your careers, be assured that your faculty is proud of you and confident that you will make many valuable contributions. We trust that you will ever maintain an interest in your school just as we of the Faculty will follow your careers with great interest.
Mr. Ward, Mr. Koch, and Mr. Myers have endeavored to produce the finest quality yearbook at the lowest possible cost.

The co-editors discuss an intimate detail of the book.

Elias Souri left no stone unturned in his attempt to raise funds for the yearbook.

Photographer Jim Herron tactfully persuades an unwilling subject to pose for his camera.

Al Wisner "putting on the squeeze" for more Patron contributions.

Chuck Driben grooming another of his unique photographic subjects.

Photographer Ron Rowley carefully checks a reading on his light meter.

The Class of 1965 expresses sincere thanks to the following people for their invaluable assistance in the publishing of this book: Mrs. Ruth Schaffer, Miss Trudy King, Miss Helen F. Jarrett, Mrs. Margit Hobbs, Mr. Gerald Levinson, and Dr. Paul Berg.

Benny Wolf taught me to tie my ties.

Red Man chew keeps my teeth clean and white.

Veil, Dollink; you come to see me or dis new chickadee?

Look, Lady; your bill is already this thick...

Who is dis Skippy fellow?

Foreign intrigue.

Occasionally I let the other Pathologist assist.

The ring and the coat were not from the same man.

Goosed by a filing cabinet drawer.

Red 36, Blue 24, Orange 36...

My neck is more sensitive than my ears.

Good Morning; Skippy's Animal Hospital.
A short skirt and Tupperwares would really boost your sales...

Anything you want in those bottles—Vodka, Gin, Scotch...

Sorry, Sir; my appointment book is filled also.

The due date on the Inquirer is 10 minutes.

Every four hours the lights go out and these things fly at me.

Sex sliced thin.

Boy, does this Dr. Lee have a line!

Fix your own stinking toilet.

Heaven! Jack; you think I'd look funny with a white beard and red coat?

A smile a day keeps Bill away.

Since you asked, Dr. Wilkinson; I think he's got diabetes insipidus or pancreatic atrophy.

Can't nobody have no privacy around here?

You guys make it through us you get a pair of whites.

The only good thing about this job is Mrs. Murphy's parties.
I'd put them in my ears, but I have to handle the food.

You misunderstood, Sir; it's not "Feel Service."

Not another rumor...

Just keeping my ears peeled...

How did you describe my eyes again?

You don't believe in watermelon seeds?

You guys sure go thru a lot of syringes.

Good God! What radiographs?

You mean it's really not radio-ology?

I'm hiring Lawrence Welk for my next blast.

You'll have to wait; I'm wanted in special surgery.

Change for a $100 bill?

A fifth? Gift wrapped?

Shooore!

Darn, George; caught me stealing eggs again!

Hello there, Tiger.
No, it's not Charlie McCarthy!

Bunnies of New Bolton.

I've had a lovely time in your beautiful country, you stupid Yanks.

Ever see me twist?
